Dear Denise:

Enclosed as we discussed are copies of several letters submitted recently in response to published articles on the ETS issue. Materials include Peter Lee's letter to the Journal of the National Cancer Institute addressing the Stockwell studies on ETS and cancer and diet and cancer; Gio Gori's letter to the Journal of the National Cancer Institute responding to David Burns' editorial on the Stockwell ETS study; letters to the Journal of the American Medical Association from Peter Lee and Nathan Mantel responding to the Trichopoulos study; and a letter to the Journal of the American Medical Association from Sterling Associates responding to a recent study on ETS levels in California workplaces.

Six additional projects currently are in progress. Max Layard, Maurice LeVois and Paul Switzer are preparing additional letters to the Journal of the National Cancer Institute addressing the Stockwell ETS and diet studies; and Max Layard, Peter Lee and Gio Gori are preparing letters to the American Journal of Public Health addressing the significance of the Brownson study and its impact on EPA's risk assessment of ETS.

We will forward copies of the additional materials as they become available. Please let me know if you have questions or need additional information.

Sincerely,

Kay
